A Message from the Chairperson of the Board of Management

As chairperson of the Board of Management I am happy to present the Port Lincoln Aboriginal Health Service Strategic Plan for 2016-21. The plan is the result of community, client and staff consultation, an examination of service delivery and outcome data, and planning workshops involving both the staff and Board of Management.

The Strategic Plan will guide the governance, activities and service delivery of PLAHS over the next five years. The plan is designed and will be published in a number of forms to make it accessible to Board Members, PLAHS employees, clients of PLAHS, the broader Aboriginal Community of Port Lincoln and other health providers.

Our Vision, Mission, Values and Understandings

Our Vision

The Port Lincoln Aboriginal Health Service will strive to maintain our autonomy and cultural identity as an Aboriginal Community Controlled Health Service whilst delivering quality, holistic primary health care services to the Aboriginal community.

Our Mission

To provide leadership, direction and support on community health issues and to strengthen the capacity of individuals, families and communities to improve the health and social wellbeing of our people.

Our Values

The values of PLAHS guide our attitudes and behaviours. They influence both the way we work together and what clients can expect from us.

These values are:

Self-determination through Aboriginal ownership and control

Holistic, comprehensive Primary Health Care

Treating staff and clients with respect, compassion, consideration, listening, understanding, equality and confidentiality

Leadership, innovation and collaboration

Safe environment

Our Understandings

PLAHS understands that:

Aboriginal health is not just the physical wellbeing of an individual but is the social, emotional and cultural wellbeing of the whole community in which each individual is able to achieve their full potential thereby bringing about the total wellbeing of their community. It is a whole-of-life view and includes the cyclical concept of life-death-life.

(National Aboriginal Health Strategy 1989)

PLAHS accepts that health outcomes are influenced by a range of social determinants, many of which are outside our direct control.

In broad terms, economic opportunity, physical infrastructure and social conditions influence the health of individuals, communities, and societies as a whole. These factors are specifically manifest in measures such as education, employment, income, housing, access to services, social networks, connection with land, racism, and incarceration. On all these measures, Indigenous people suffer substantial disadvantage. For many Aboriginal people, the ongoing effects of 'protection' and the forced separation of children from their families compound other social disadvantages.

(Adapted from 'The Overview of Indigenous Health 2011')

PLAHS accepts the following definition of Primary Health Care that has been adapted from one developed by the Australian Primary Health Care Research Institute.

Primary health care is socially appropriate, universally accessible, evidence based first level care provided by health services and systems with a suitably trained workforce comprised of multi-disciplinary teams supported by integrated referral systems in a way that:

- addresses health inequalities; and
- maximises community and individual self-determination; and
- involves collaboration and partnership with other sectors to promote public health.

Comprehensive primary health care includes health promotion, illness prevention, healing treatment and care, community development, advocacy and rehabilitation.

Our client base

PLAHS mainly provides services to Aboriginal clients from the local Port Lincoln Aboriginal Community but also services transient clients from across the western and northern sections of South Australia and the rest of Australia.

Active clients are defined as those that have used the services of PLAHS three times in the last two years. The composition of the active client population at the end of December 2015 was:

Total number of active clients	1395
• Current	1089
• Transient	306
• Active clients that live in the local 5606 postcode area	1142
• Aboriginal	1269
• Torres Strait Islander	2
• Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander	17
• Non-ATSI	107

Governance

PLAHS is an Aboriginal Community Controlled Health Service, governed by local Aboriginal people for the local Aboriginal Community.

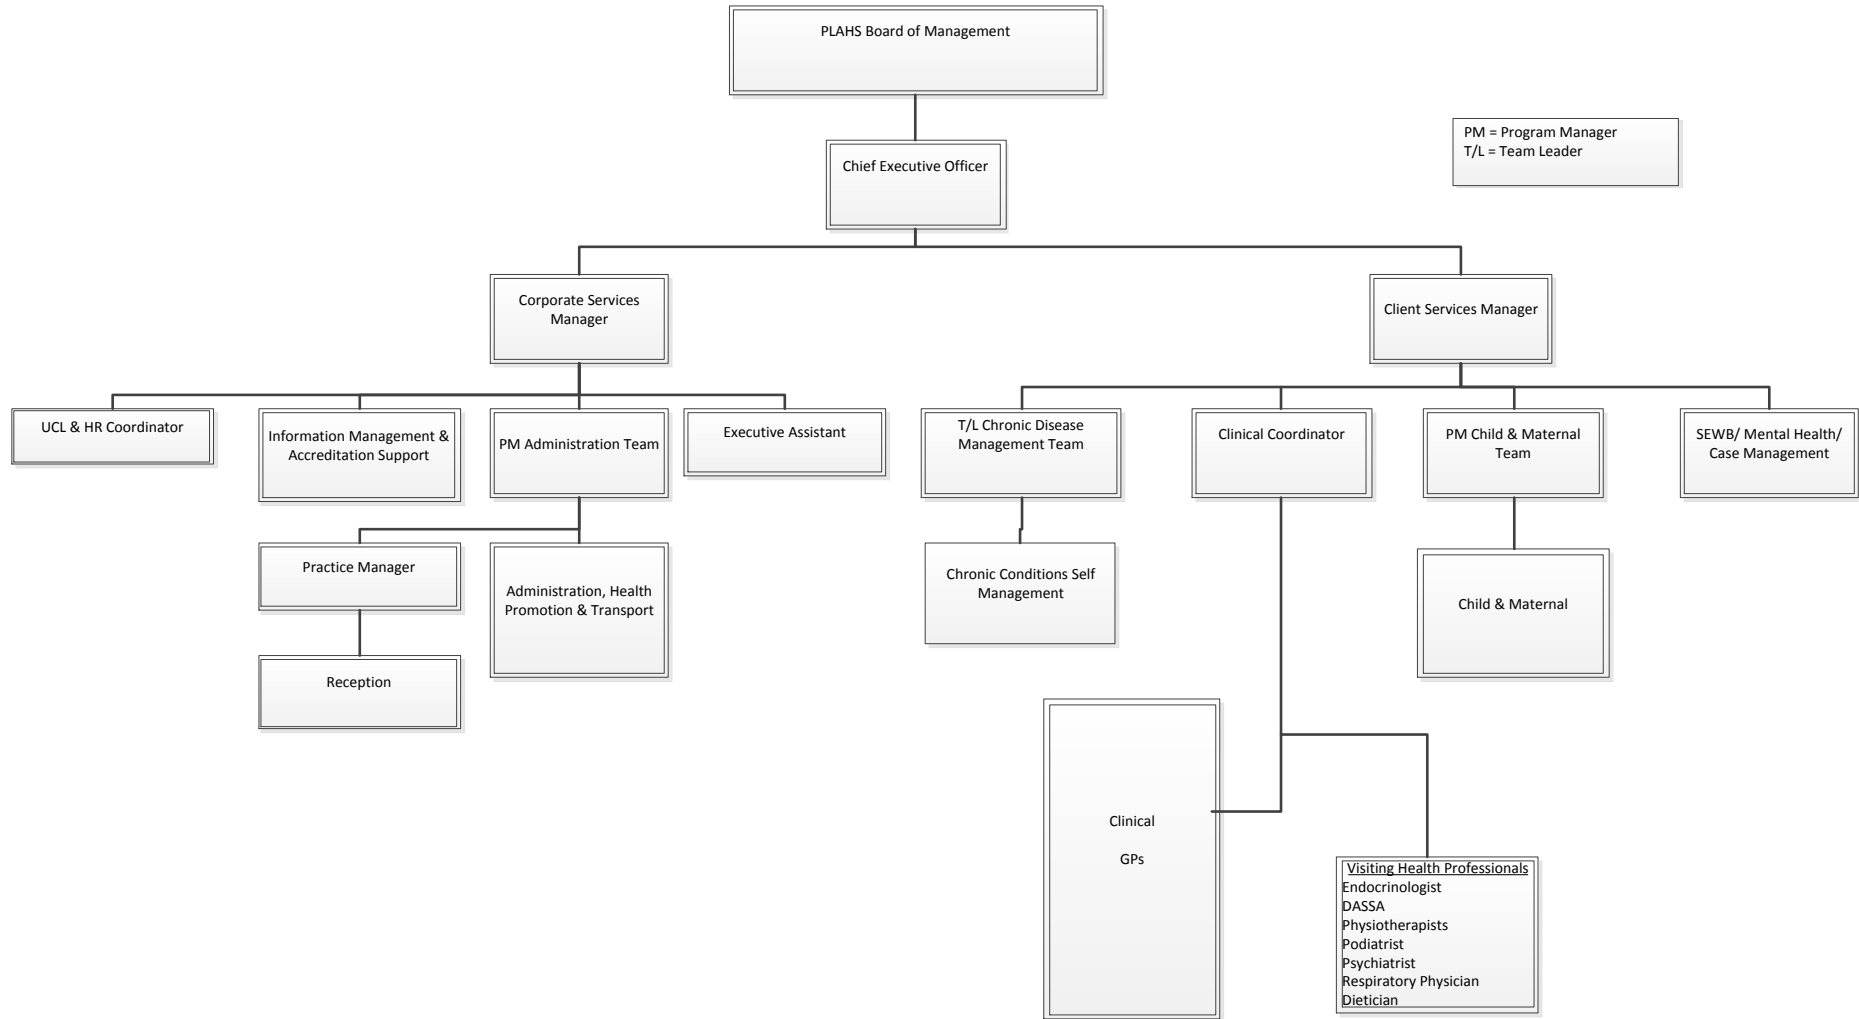

PLAHS is a member of the National Aboriginal Community Controlled Health Organisation (NACCHO) and an affiliate of the Aboriginal Health Council of South Australia (AHCSA).

As required by the PLAHS constitution, a Board of Management is elected annually by Aboriginal people from the local community and meets monthly, thus providing the local Aboriginal Community an involvement in the decision making process and the monitoring of programs at PLAHS.

The PLAHS Board of Management consists of:

- Chairperson
- Vice-chairperson
- Treasurer
- Secretary
- Public Officer
- Youth Representative
- Two general members

PLAHS Corporate and Service Structure

Strategic Priorities July 2016 to June 2021

As the result of an environmental scan and consultations with member of the Board of Management, clients, staff, and the wider Port Lincoln Aboriginal Community, PLAHS has identified eleven strategic priorities for the five years to June 2021.

- 1. To develop both the physical infrastructure and the facilities at PLAHS to provide an environment that promotes both primary health care and client comfort as well as providing a safe and effective work place.*
- 2. To improve the capabilities, qualifications and the effectiveness of the PLAHS workforce.*
- 3. To maximise the sustainability of PLAHS by retaining Royal Australian College of General Practitioners (RACGP) and Quality Improvement Council (QIC) accreditation and by securing funding from a range of sources.*
- 4. To deliver clinical programs that address the health needs of the local Aboriginal Community.*
- 5. To develop and deliver programs, in partnership with external agencies, to improve wellbeing and to reduce the harm to individuals, families and the community.*
- 6. To improve the social and emotional wellbeing of the community.*
- 7. To provide community development and engagement opportunities aimed at improving family and community relationships.*
- 8. To explore the needs of aged and/or disabled clients and to ensure that appropriate support is available.*
- 9. To explore the health and other needs of youth in the community and to ensure that appropriate support is available.*
- 10. To develop, document and maintain the relationships between PLAHS and other health service providers, Aboriginal organisations, advocacy groups and all levels of government.*
- 11. To promote PLAHS as a leading organisation in the local Aboriginal Community, the wider Aboriginal health sector, and amongst mainstream health service providers.*
